B.Com Admission Process

Admissions for B.Com. Courses are made based on merit, as per the rules and regulations applicable for religious minority institutions. State Government reservation policy is not applicable as per article 30 (1) of the constitution of India. The process of admission is as follows.

- Merit applications are invited from the eligible candidates.
- General merit list is prepared by college admission committee and providing opportunity thru grievance for final merit list.
- If there are grievances, it is sorted out and first merit list for admission is prepared. Selected candidates are given time to conform their admission. Second merit list is prepared against vacancies available in the first merit list. Likewise third merit list is prepared if against vacancies available in the second merit list if required.

Admission Eligibility-

B Com Part I

- Students passing out Higher Secondary Certificate Examination (HSC of any board) are eligible to apply for admissions to the B Com program. The ratio for admission would be 80:20, where 80% students will be from junior section of same institute and the remaining 20% seats are allotted to the applicants from other colleges.

Students who have passed the qualifying HSC examination from the parent institute will be admitted to the B.Com Course on the basis of merit by observing the reservation policy of Government applicable to minority institutes will be the ultimate criteria for admissions of students both of parent institute and other college.
